

GUIDELINES AND STYLESHEET FOR PUBLICATIONS IN /

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE SUBSIDIA MAXIMIANA

[VERSION 1, FEBRUARY 2022]

Editorial responsibility: Alexis Léonas (Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary; alex_leonas@yahoo.com) & Vladimir Cvetkovic (Belgrade University, Institute for Philosophy and Social Theory; vlad.cvetkovic@gmail.com)

Publishing manager: Bart Janssens ([bart.janssens@brepols.net](mailto bart.janssens@brepols.net))

Editorial board: Paul Blowers (Emmanuel Christian Seminary), Anthony Dupont (KU Leuven), Bronwen Neil (Macquarie University), Bram Roosen (KU Leuven), Torstein Tollefsen (University of Oslo), Peter Van Deun (KU Leuven)

The following set of guidelines has been established with a double purpose: (1) to guarantee the consistency of the Subsidia Maximiana, both as a series in its own right and as a subseries of the Instrumenta Patristica et Mediaevalia; (2) to present future authors and contributors with a workable guide for the preparation of their manuscript.

If for some reason your contribution or book should require a deviation from these guidelines, please present your case to the series editors and/or publishing manager.

Please note:

- The present guidelines are designed for studies. If your contribution is primarily and essentially an edition, we invite you to consult the guidelines of the Corpus Christianorum. Series Graeca for Greek texts, or the Corpus Christianorum. Series Latina, c.q. the Corpus Christianorum. Continuatio Mediaevalis for Latin texts. We are aware that these guidelines might be too extensive in the case of editions of short texts (or parts of texts), or if the edition is not the essential part of the contribution. Still, the aforementioned guidelines do show the standard practices and procedures of an edition within the different series of the Corpus Christianorum, and, therefore, the Instrumenta Patristica et Mediaevalia, and can, as such, provide guiding principles.
- The present guidelines are drawn up for contributions and books in English, which is the primary language of the series. In the event of contributions or books in other languages, some of the guidelines below might not apply, because of the characteristics or habits of the language of the contribution.
- Lines marked in grey in the following pages are examples of what is explained.

1 WORKFLOW

- [1.1] Book proposals, whether they be monographs or edited volumes, should comply with the goal of the series:

The recent revival of Maximian studies has called into being this new forum for scholarship on the Homologete. St Maximus the Confessor is a highly original thinker and theologian who made a durable impact on both Eastern and Western traditions. The Subsidia Maximiana subseries in Instrumenta Patristica et Mediaevalia provides studies on Maximus's life, his work, and his legacy in philosophical and theological as well as historical and philological perspective. The series is open to monographs and to proceedings of colloquia and international congresses.

- [1.2] Proposals should be sent to Alexis Léonas & Vladimir Cvetkovic, the series editors, and/or Bart Janssens, the publishing manager at Brepols. To do so, please fill out the proposal form (download).
- [1.3] If a proposal is acceptable, you will be asked to provide the full text, which will be subjected to single-blind peer review, either by a specialist member of the editorial board or by an external specialist.
- [1.4] The remarks made by the peer reviewer and/or editorial board are expected to be implemented or at least seriously considered. If for some reason the author thinks these remarks cannot be implemented, this reason should be thoroughly discussed with the board.
- [1.5] Once the manuscript is judged to be in line with the present guidelines and accepted for publication, the manuscript will be sent to Brepols Publishing Services for processing. At this point, the author will be asked to sign an edition contract in which the terms of publication are specified.
- [1.6] The author will receive a pre-typeset proof of his text in Word. At this point, authors will still be able to make whatever changes they deem necessary.
- [1.7] Once the preprint version is returned, a typeset proof will be produced. At this point, substantial changes are no longer possible. Typesetting errors, however, can still be corrected and small corrections can still be made. The typeset proof is also the basis to finalise the index.

2 TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS AND GENERAL REMARKS

- [2.1] Manuscripts must be submitted in digital form, accompanied by a pdf file. Use a recent version of Word for Windows or Apple.
- [2.2] Only Unicode-fonts will be accepted.
- [2.3] Use the formatting features of Word (italics, superscript, small caps, footnotes, etc.), but do not try to simulate the final layout. This will be done by the typesetter according to the series stylesheet.

3 REQUIREMENTS FOR ARTICLES IN AN EDITED VOLUME

- [3.1] Title of the article: 14 pt, in lower case, but keep in mind the language specific requirements with regard to capitalization.

Maximus the Confessor's Anti-Severan Polemics in the Opuscula

- [3.2] Author of the article: forename(s) in normal type followed by surname in small capitals (12pt), followed by city of residence, italicized between parentheses (11 pt)

Kevin M. Clarke
(San Francisco)

- [3.3] Subdivisions of the article:

For articles it is not advised to use more than two levels of subdivision.

- First level: 12pt, bold, aligned left (if necessary, with Arabic numbering)
- Second level: 12 pt, italicized (if necessary, 'numbered' with letters)

1. Why compile a dossier of anti-monothelite letters?

a. Dogmatic Tome to Marinus (Opusculum 20)

- [3.4] Main body of the text:

The main body of the text is set in 12 pt. and adheres to the following principles

- Words from a language other than the one in which the contribution is written, should be put in italics (unless they are part of a quotation or citation).
- (Block) quotes:
 - long quotations within the body of the text are put in 11pt normal font, are indented, and are put between double inverted quotation marks.
 - For a quotation within a quotation use single inverted quotation marks.
 - To indicate that you have left part of the quotation out, use [...]
 - To indicate that characters or words were introduced, use <>
- Long quotations from Maximus the Confessor and other source texts in Greek, Latin, ...
 - Such quotations are treated as block quotes but are not put between quotation marks.
 - The text should be quoted on the basis of the edition that is considered to be the best, not on the basis of the edition that is most easily accessible.
 - As a rule, quotations should be translated either by the author of the book/contribution or by quoting a translation. If an author decides to quote an existing translation, quality should be chosen over language. This means that it is acceptable to quote a French translation in an English contribution or a German translation in an Italian contribution.
 - If the translation is not by the author of the article, the translator's name should be given between brackets at the end of the translation, unless, of course, the first time, when full bibliographical references should be given in footnote.
- Do not insert blank lines between paragraphs.
- Avoid bibliographical references in the body of the text, as they hamper the readability of the text. Bibliographical references should be put in the footnotes.
- Titles of classical, patristic, or medieval texts are written in italics
- Diacritics should be added for capital letters also, e.g.: À la suite de...
- Centuries should be written in full, e.g.: the seventh century
- Use regular capitals for Roman numbers, e.g.: Constantinople III

- Apostrophes, single and double quotation marks are rounded (Maximus' death, ‘...’ and “...”)
- Round brackets within round brackets should be avoided and substituted with square brackets: ([])

[3.5] Editions and texts presented in appendix

As already said, please refer to the guidelines of the Corpus Christianorum. Series Graeca and the Corpus Christianorum. Series Latina or Corpus Christianorum. Continuatio Mediaevalis for the edition of Greek, c.q. Latin texts.

[3.6] Footnotes

Footnotes are set in 10 pt. and are positioned at the foot of the page. Endnotes are not accepted, as they hamper the readability of studies. If for some reason you need both footnotes and endnotes, please consult with the series editors and/or the publishing manager.

4 BIBLIOGRAPHICAL REFERENCES

[4.1] Monographs

Initial(s) of the author's forename(s), SURNAME (= in small capitals), Title and Subtitle of the Work (= in italics), Place of Publication, Year of Publication (Series, volume number), page or pages preceded by p. or pp.

[4.5] Editions of sources

To refer to editions of sources, please follow the example:

Maximus Confessor, Liber Asceticus, ed. by P. VAN DEUN, Turnhout, 2000 (Corpus Christianorum. Series Graeca, 40), p. 12

[4.6] Abbreviated bibliographical references

If a bibliographical reference is used more than once in the same contribution or book, an abbreviated form of that reference should be used from the second mention onwards. Please make sure that this abbreviated form is transparent, makes sense, is unambiguous, and, ideally, is not longer than five words (authors + title):

VON BALTHASAR, Kosmische Liturgie, p. 23

Please do not use op. cit. / o.c. (use the abbreviated reference instead), sq. / sqq. (give the exact location), ... and use ibid. sparingly and only if confusion is excluded.

[4.7] Page, Note, Column, Folium references, and dashes:

- Page(s): p. 13 pp. 13-25
- Notes: p. 35, n. 25
- Columns: col. 32 cols. 32-33

Please note that in the case of the Patrologia Graeca and the Patrologia Latina col. and cols. is not used.

- Folios: f. 3 f. 4^v ff. 2^{r-v} ff. 2-3^v f. 3^{v-a-b}
- Numbers are always written in full and are not elided
p. 112-115, NOT p. 112-5
- Never use an Em-dash (—).
- Use an En-dash (–) only with a space before and after it. An En-dash is used with the meaning “from... until...” in the case of composite numbers.
PG 91, 301 A6 – B5 PG 91, 309 C9 – 312 A4 102, 25 – 103, 1
- Never put spaces before and after a hyphen (-). A hyphen is used with the meaning “from... until...” in the case of simple numbers or letters.

		Sus.	Susanna
		Dan.	Daniel
		Bel-et-Dr.	Bel-et-Draco

For publications and contributions in English, scholars can also decide to use the SBL style guide for Biblical books and versions. For contributions or books in other languages, other systems are acceptable. Please make sure that the same system is used throughout the book or contribution. Please be advised that for multilingual edited volumes, the biblical index will use the ‘Latin’ system specified in the table above.

English contributions can also use the SBL guidelines to refer to specific biblical verses:

Eph 1:1, 12; Deut 21:23; Rom 8:1-4; 12:10

[5.2] The Maximian corpus
